
Title: The Word of Lasombra

Author: The Keeper

*the book is sealed with the insignia of a crown on it. The book title reads "The Word of Lasombra to his Childer."

As record by N. Wael of the Lasombra, these are the words of Lord Lasombra:

Know you this, my progeny, that tendril of shadow shall trail behind us wherever we go.
Know you this, my progeny, that our vanity shall show forever in the looking glass. Know you this, my progeny,
that our land is forever the land of darkness.
Know that when the time comes, darkness shall consume my soul, as it will one day consume yours. Listen well, my sons, my daughters! Let not yourselves be consumed by our own darkness! Know and remember that our place is a place of shadows, from where we shall forever dwell, watching. Made we were to watch from the shadows, our purpose, and so we shall. Know that forever, I will watch you from the shadows,
through eyes not my own, and will one day find my way into a fleshly home anew, and will walk amongst you once more.

*the following words are

Recorded before

Lasombra's disappearance.
